Taekwondo FAQs

What's the difference between Taekwondo and Karate?

Taekwondo originates in Korea; Karate comes from Japan. Taekwondo uses many of the same hand techniques as karate, but emphasizes kicks more. This makes for effective self-defense.

How many classes a week can I work out?

We offer classes six days per week, and students are encouraged to work out as often as they like. Personal workouts are also recommended.

Do I have to buy a uniform?

Nope. Most people wear shorts or sweats at first. You won't need a uniform until your first testing. We have all sizes in stock; they cost about $30.

How does the belt system work?

We award belt ranks in the following order: White, Yellow, Green, Blue, Red, Black. DTA offers a promotional testing every two months.

How long does it take to earn a Black Belt?

It takes most students 90 - 120 hours, over 15 - 18 months of in-class training under the supervision of a Certified Instructor to achieve Red Belt. At this point, self-defense should be automatic and instinctive. It takes another 6 - 12 months to earn the rank of Black Belt.

Who teaches the classes?

We are proud that many of our students continue to work out for years after earning their black belts. Nevertheless, we do not allow all black belts to instruct. Mr. Rogers selects those people who are not only excellent martial artists, but also clear communicators. Our instructors are professional, certified and highly experienced.

How do I enroll? / How much does it cost?

You pay a one-time $65 enrollment fee and the first month's tuition of $98. Tuition is monthly—no contracts.

Do you offer family member discounts?

Sure! Additional members of your immediate family train for a reduced rate of $58 each. An enrollment fee of $50 does apply for each student, however, we will work with families on the sign-up fees. There is no annual membership fee.
